Italians Rearguard Trapped At Baria

Today's War Moves

REPORTS OF German plans to conquer Great Britain by direct assault this winter or next spring seem based on emotionalism arising outside the Reich rather than expectations within Germany itself. Realistic strategy should cause Herr Hitler to continue attacks on British shipping as his main present offensive rather than risk everything on the uncertainty of an invasion.

If Great Britain were to let down her guard and grow careless, opportunities for an invasion would arise. But, as long as the British are stimulated to help their defence in efficiency, it would appear highly improbable that the German high command would contemplate a major attempt at a landing.

Any such action scarcely could be justified except as a last desperate

ITALIANS FLEE MAIN BASES IN SOUTH ALBANIA

Tepelini and Kilastra Are Deserted By Fascist Armed Forces

STRUGA, Yugoslavia, (AP)—The Italian forces in the Balkans are deserting in great numbers, according to reports from the front.

By BEN AMES

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Italian troops have been driven from Tepelini and Kilastra, their chief strongholds in southern Albania, leaving both towns in Greek hands.

The area around both towns has become "no man's land," with Greeks and Italians fighting in the surrounding mountains, according to a message from Paul Paleologos, British United Press correspondent with the Greek army there. He said the Italians burned the towns before they withdrew Tuesday night and Wednesday morning.

If the Greeks occupy the towns, it would be a major blow to the Italian position in the Balkans.

Route Of Escape To Tobruk Is Bombed By British Airplanes

Position Of Remnants Of Beaten Fascist Army At Libyan Base Is Now Regarded As Precarious

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Italian rearguard forces left to defend Baria, Libya's principal base in the frontier region, have been trapped and their way to escape to Tobruk is under aerial bombardment, British war communiques declared tonight.

"Advanced elements of our troops which have successfully contained numerically superior enemy forces in Baria are being steadily reinforced and the position of the remnants of the beaten Italian army in that area can now be regarded as precarious," said a general headquarters communiqué.

The Royal Air Force, recounting raids and reconnaissance which kept British planes over the western desert battle zone and also over the frontiers with Italian East Africa, reported:

"The Baria-Tobruk road was also bombed, but little movement was seen."

PATROLS ACTIVE
Linked with aerial operations against the remnants of the Italian army were British land patrol operations.

"On the Sudan frontier our patrols were again active in the Kassa and Gallabat areas, facing Eritrea and Ethiopia, respectively, inflicting a number of casualties on the enemy," said the communiqué.

General headquarters said that 31,548 Italian prisoners, including 1,678 officers, had been counted already as the result of the Libyan offensive and that several thousand more were being removed from operations.

An admiralty communiqué issued in London told of continuing naval bombardment of Italian positions along the coast and Prime Minister Churchill in the House of Commons addressed a group of army operations.

"In fighting at Sid Omar, the prime minister said 800 prisoners and a large amount of artillery were captured. "Perhaps their hearts are not in their work," Mr. Churchill said.

Baria, less than 100 air miles north of the junction of the Libyan-Egyptian frontier, was an important Italian supply base and port. The normal population is 5,270.

The R.A.F. forced wide in its offensive. It made a "wave" attack two nights ago on Benina airfield where its communiqué declared it "one of the heaviest raids of the war in the western desert," destroyed

Naval Gun Manufacturing Plant May Be Located In Alberta, Ottawa Reports

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.—Announcement of a big program of naval gun manufacture in Canada, in which one and possibly two plants will be located in Western Canada, came Wednesday night from W. E. Ryndale, director-general of munitions production for Canada, at his first press conference.

The manufacture of naval guns will be undertaken in three different plants, with production of mountings for the guns in five more plants. One of the plants, Mr. Ryndale said, would definitely be in Western Canada, and possibly a second one.

While details of location of the plants are subject to military considerations, it was indicated that naval guns will be made in Manitoba, Alberta and Nova Scotia.

REPORT NAZIS RUSHING HELP TO MUSSOLINI

Troops Being Rushed By Rail Through Brenner Pass Is Report

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The newspaper Der Demokrat of Berne reported today "from a good source in Zurich" that freight and civilian traffic that has been suspended on the Brenner railway line to permit the passage of German divisions which are on their way to Italy.

Inquiries of reliable sources both in Rome and Berlin failed to confirm the report.

STREGA, Yugoslavia, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The German transport planes were reported today to be shuttling Italian reinforcements across the Adriatic to the Albanian front in an effort to halt the Greek counter-offensive.

German pilots, because of their experience in this method of moving troops, were said to be flying low Junkers sent after urgent requests from Mussolini.

Military sources, where the report of German aid originated, said that each Junker carries 20 fully-armed men on the short hop across the Adriatic and that the crossing could be made every three or four days.

These quarters indicated that the Italian forces were being reinforced by German troops in the Balkans.

Lines and through into Italy without loss of time. Specially trained Alpine troops were understood to make up the bulk of the German reinforcements.

On his way to Salonika to visit the wife of a nephew now serving in the Canadian Active Service Force overseas, Mr. Slade decided to stop off in Edmonton to get his share of the territory he had not seen since 1905.

In that year he was the driver of a transport wagon for a Canadian regiment mobilized for service against Louis Riel. He remembers Edmonton as a Hudson's Bay post in those days, with less than 100 whites in permanent residence.

LONDONERS HEAR FIRST AIR ALARM IN THREE NIGHTS

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(CP)—Londoners heard air raid sirens shrilling early this evening for the first time in three nights and Wednesday night was quiet.

Officials noted, just before the alarm sounded, that this was the third consecutive day in which very little bomb fell on Britain.

Immediately after the alarm sounded, gunfire was heard in the direction of the capital.

The "sounding ended a quiet period of about 68 hours, the longest since the German Nazi air force landed in September.

An East Anglian town also reported that Nazi planes were overhead.

A communiqué of the ministries of air and home security said there was "very little hostile activity" over the country during daylight today, and that no reports had been received from any area of bombs being dropped.

One Nazi bomber was shot down by fighters off the southwest coast.

Bread Subsidy Is Put Into Effect In Great Britain

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(CP)—The government today announced the establishment of a bread subsidy, effective for three months, beginning Dec. 1, which it estimated would cost £70,000,000 ($332,000,000).

The subsidy will permit bakers to sell a four-pound loaf for about 17 cents, the food ministry said.

Old-Timer Comes Back For Visit

Here is William C. Slade, 81-year-old pioneer who was in Edmonton Thursday for the first time since 1905, when he was a transport driver in the Riel Rebellion. Comparing the replica of the first edition of The Bulletin, published in 1905 and a copy of Thursday's new edition, Mr. Slade said that the growth of the newspaper was just another of the many surprises he'd received at the rapid development of Edmonton from a small trading post to a thriving metropolis.

William C. Slade Comes Back After 55 Years To Look For Old Land-Marks

By A. E. NIGHTINGALE, JR.

An old-timer with a story to tell came back to Edmonton Wednesday night after an absence of 55 years. He is William C. Slade, of Cottonwood, B.C., prospector, ranchman, and, unwittingly, an historian.

"A veteran of the Riel Rebellion of 1885, Mr. Slade is a distinguished-looking chap, not particularly tall, but with a definite 'old-timer' appearance, a rugged weathered countenance and a regular old-time mustache which he has a habit of stroking when he happens to think of some interesting years of the days long since gone into the discard.

On his way to Saskatoon to visit the wife of a nephew now serving in the Canadian Active Service Force overseas, Mr. Slade decided to stop off in Edmonton to get his share of the territory he had not seen since 1905.

MANNHEIM IS AGAIN HIT BY R.A.F. BOMBS

Smashing Off Communications Of Axis Is Objective Of British

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(CP)—Three straight nights of Royal Air Force bombardment of Mannheim, southwestern Germany, industrial, commercial and communications center, were ended today in what were reported as part of a British move to smash communications between Germany and Italy.

Linked with the third attack last night was an R.A.F. raid on Italy, according to the Air Ministry's announcement.

Informal quarters around the Mannheim raids, however, as an attempt to smash communications links between the axis powers while British troops continue their drive into Italy.

The British attack was described by the Air Ministry as "a very serious blow" to the Axis, and "a very serious blow" to the Axis, and "a very serious blow" to the Axis.

In the Great War of 1914-1918 when the bugles sounded the call to arms, more than 600,000 Canadians answered the call. Now some of these men—they were little more than boys then—lie in their graves and other disabilities received in action, in the military ward of the University hospital.

It is to insure that these men have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year that The Bulletin news staff has opened its columns to receive donations to The Not Forgotten Fund.

New Opportunities For Well-Equipped Troops Are Likely

Churchill Tells House Of Commons 30,000 Italians Captured By British Forces In North African Operations

By WALLACE CARROLL

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(BUP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that Great Britain, with the material aid of the United States, must have a great and well-trained army ready to fight at home or take the offensive against the Axis powers in 1941.

Although the Prime Minister admitted that Britain was a "half armed" nation that had been fighting a power that had passed the saturation point in armament, he spoke with cold, analytical optimism of the successful offensive against Italian forces in Libya and the outlook for the coming year.

In regard to the British army in 1941, Churchill said: "We shall try and I trust find opportunities of using our forces, if not in the defense of this island, then in other theatres of war where we may hope that they may be able to contend their opponents on terms, moderate perhaps in number, but on terms of equality in equipment."

Complete text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech in the House of Commons Thursday will be found on page 4.

Plans Made For Long War

The mere fact that plans were made to carry on the war until 1941, he emphasized, did not mean that it necessarily would continue that long.

Churchill said that:

1.—The offensive into Libya is "by no means at an end" and increasingly strong British forces are confidently expected to capture the big Italian base of Bardia. British losses were listed as 72 killed and 738 wounded up to Monday compared to more than 30,000 Italians and vast war supplies captured.

2.—The Axis submarine and air siege of shipping lines to the British Isles is cause for "disquietude" but "we shall steadily increase" means of fighting the counter-blockade.

3.—The British defenses at home now include a "very large army" capable of moving rapidly behind beach defenses from Scotland around the entire island but it would be "disaster" to assume that the danger of invasion is passed.

4.—The nation must "remember that Hitler—I should deprecate any comparison of Hitler to Napoleon as a ruthless man to insult the dead—wields gigantic power . . . in a different manner and has great need of doing something now or soon."

Churchill said that there was "great need" of Hitler doing something "in the next two months" presumably because of reverses suffered by the Axis, and that the full air attacks on Britain since Monday night might indicate preparations for a big new blow.

"The action is by no means at an end," Churchill said at the drive into Italy.

which he discharged this important and extremely delicate mission," he said.

He warned the House that it would be dangerous for him to make a full statement of the war situation.

It certainly would be very convenient of Hitler or important chiefs in Germany were to give us every fortnight or so an honest-to-good statement," he said amid laughter.

Then he added: "If they were capable of that."

Churchill also warned parliament that the Axis offensive against British shipping in the Atlantic ocean continued "at a disquieting level."

He said that considerably more than 30,000 Italian prisoners, 100 seizable guns, 50 tanks and great quantities of valuable stores had been captured by the British.

The Prime Minister said Britain had lost less than 1,000 men in the entire offensive in western Egypt and Libya.

An Automatic Stabilizer

An order-in-council was issued at Ottawa which recommends employers and employees to adopt a "winding scale" pay system already in operation in coal mining areas in Alberta. The arrangement is that when the cost of living goes up 5 per cent employees get a bonus of 5 per cent. If the cost of living subsequently goes down, the bonus is no longer paid. No reduction, however, to be made from the present basic rate of pay.

The order-in-council is not compulsory, but the arrangement is an obviously reasonable one. It is likely to be widely adopted. It will be voluntarily adopted wherever it is rather too much to expect, and the order might properly be made mandatory. Because this is a fair way to meet cost of living fluctuations, without any disturbance of industry, no legitimate objection could be made to its enforcement by law.

Forced Loans

Only 19 Commons voted in support of Mr. Colville's proposal that the Government adopt a policy of making interest-free loans from people who have money available. Had the proposal been introduced earlier as a motion, it would have been the debate would not doubt have been longer and more instructive, though in the end it would have met the same fate.

Forced loans would involve another kind of taxation, imposed only upon that section of the public who happened to have money on hand that could be put to use. The taxation would be the amount of the interest or the profits which the owners of the money can secure by using it in business or buying bonds or war savings. It would be necessary to tie to their wealth, rich men commonly keep large ready cash on hand than those who are only comfortably off. It would be a bear because on those who are really less able to stand it.

Conceivably the time might come when forced loans would be resorted to as a device just as the time might come when a capital levy would have to be made, or when inflation of the money supply would be necessary. But, other considerations aside, it is well to leave all emergency expedients in reserve. All the money required now can be secured by methods which the public understand, are used to, and accept without challenge.

The Shipping Menace

During the last week in November, 13 British, allied and neutral merchant ships were sunk by enemy surface raiders, submarines and airplanes, totalling $22,229 loss. It was a drop of blood in the sea of war. In the preceding week, and about one-fourth of those in the "peak" week of October 14-21. But during the week ending December 13 the figures went up to 13 ships, and by doubling the total for the week preceding, and the highest for any week excepting that in mid-October, when the tonnage lost was 126,000.

Hopes aroused by the earlier report that the raiders had been countered are now shown to be unfounded. So far as losses are concerned, the threat to British food and other supplies from overseas has not been curbed or even lessened. It is a matter of time before British-aided cruises, destroyers and airplanes are so urgently needed elsewhere that not enough of them will be available to establish an effective patrol over the "death corner" in the eastern Atlantic, or to prevent enemy merchant ships through the danger zone.

The one encouraging fact in this record is that the sinkings have not been taking place where production and shipping are heavy, but where they were not. The airplanes and the wolf, destroyer working together are more than a match for the U-boat. When these can be spared for the hunt, sufficient numbers, "death corner" will come to have a new significance for the under-lying war. The sinking of the Devon, a ship having such a devilish sinking merchant ship without warning and murdering the crews and passengers.

"If The World Survives"

Speaking at Warm Springs, Georgia, on Sunday, President Roosevelt said he would return there for a visit on New Year's day. The explanation of this came promptly from London. Mr. Winston Churchill said that the President was returning to his home in the White House, and that he was returning to his home in the White House, and that he was returning to his home in the White House.

At London, Lord Beaverbrook broadcast a warning that the Nazis are spending the winter building plans and other paraphernalia for an invasion of England. The spring, "they land," and principally by air. At Washington, President Roosevelt outlined a plan to lend fighting planes to all of available and productive kinds to Britain; for he hopes to get quicker action than would be possible if the aid had to wait for the repeal of neutrality legislation and the making of credit arrangements.

These men know where they stand, if anyone knows outside Germany. When they say a new and fiercer fighting is to be launched in a matter of weeks, it is no weeks, this is next thing to a direct announcement by the Führer himself. That is what the President means when he says that the world is in a state of war. That is what the President means when he says that the world is in a state of war. That is what the President means when he says that the world is in a state of war.

The Dominions, the United States, and all other countries are now helping to defend themselves by lending to defend Britain, have perhaps two months in which to turn out the needed weapons and get them across the ocean. They may not have that long. And there is needed every plane, tank, gun, ship, bomb, shell and bullet the factories of these countries can produce. Britain, already a fortress, must be equipped with the machinery of defence; and food and other supplies must be kept moving across the Atlantic in uninterrupted and increased amounts.

If Britain can withstand this shock, "the world survives." If it cannot and does not, in what corner of the world will free government have even a fair fighting chance to survive? Only last week Hitler told his followers—speaking in a munitions factory—that he plans to "defeat the world." He was in time getting to the point, but he told the truth of it. Every human being and every mile of territory on earth is to be added into submission to him, if brutality allied with tireless industry can attain his purpose.

The foundries and machine shops in Germany are going full blast, night and day, and Sundays, getting out equipment with which to smash the last bastion of democracy in Europe. In every occupied country bribes, threats and force are being employed to the same end, with some success. Unless the democracies can match this fevered production, and more than match it, they cannot hold the truth of the enemy. It is easier to construct new machinery to provide aid to England than to amend the old machinery which also prevents aid being given to Germany and Italy.

The second reason is that the amendment of old law requires the action of Congress. The government would obviously be unwilling but not easily speeded up. For such matters to legislative action is to turn the wheel of the enemy. It is the realities of political bias and controversy—a deadly alloy of mire and despond.

There is also another consideration which must be taken into account. It is not very difficult to see that the plan acceptable to the American people.

Any nation which has developed a highly efficient machine for the production of arms and munitions is a nation which is becoming sensitive about money. This plan provides a distinctly non-financial approach to the problem.

As any psychologist will tell you, there are thousands of good, generous people who would give you the shirts off their backs—but this couldn't be paid for in the end.

The inside story of Pierre Laval's dismissal from his post in the French government is now being told.

It is rather a sordid affair because, contrary to what most of us had expected, the dismissal was a result of Laval's own doing. He was a man who was not above doing to his country what he was doing to his country.

Laval's resignation was demanded by Petain before his dismissal. Laval was taken into custody later—only to be released on representations, possibly threatening, from Hitler's envoy, Abetz.

That the cultured and refined Laval carried with him no suggestion of defiance of the German invaders is attested in the fact that, after his arrest, Petain's chief of staff, General Weyers, sounded out the Nazi command in Paris before accepting the post.

The specific charges brought by Petain against Laval were of a nature which Laval would have been proud to accept. Laval was taken into custody later—only to be released on representations, possibly threatening, from Hitler's envoy, Abetz.

That Laval had sought to be named premier of France was a matter of course. Laval was taken into custody later—only to be released on representations, possibly threatening, from Hitler's envoy, Abetz.

All these charges were brought against him by men who were frightened of his powerful position and were not afraid of France's sake but for their own.

There was not one word of accusation that Laval had been a traitor. Laval was taken into custody later—only to be released on representations, possibly threatening, from Hitler's envoy, Abetz.

The entire Vichy cabinet, headed by Petain, rose against this greasy little adventure only because each of them was fearful of the power of Laval.

There is absolutely no doubt that the glory of France, the power of French equals, and the superiority of French character will one day rise above these present shames of circumstance.

Some measure of corroboration for Lord Beaverbrook's warning that Germany will try to invade England is seen in the efforts made by President Roosevelt to devise some means of getting a greater volume of war supplies to the British Isles.

It would appear at first glance that the same information which caused Beaverbrook to issue his statement is shared by the heads of government in the United States.

The President's new plan to loan or lease war material to Britain which, in the event of war, would be returned or paid for in kind, has a two-fold advantage. It obviates the troublesome and expensive business of dealing in terms of dollars. And it evades the laws which the United States has set up to put a brake on any sudden descent into the market of war.

One might inquire why, if these laws render difficult the rendering of aid to Britain, why every American of goodwill knows that is necessary. Legislative action is not taken to wipe such statutes off the books.

There are two reasons: The first is that these regulations, which are now proving embarrassing to Britain, are being put to the test of the enemy. It is easier to construct new machinery to provide aid to England than to amend the old machinery which also prevents aid being given to Germany and Italy.

The second reason is that the amendment of old law requires the action of Congress. The government would obviously be unwilling but not easily speeded up. For such matters to legislative action is to turn the wheel of the enemy.

Cars On British Roads

By P. O'D. in Toronto Saturday Night

Last autumn when Sir John Simon, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, brought in his new money-saving tax on motor cars, I remember myself to prophesy—always a risky thing to do. I said that the new tax, combined with the severe restrictions on petrol, would force half the motorists in the country to lay their cars up, thus causing a deep slump in the revenue expected from that source.

The government would obviously save a lot of petrol. But just as obviously, they would lose a lot of money—or so I thought.

I was wrong. And so were all the other motorists who view with alarm—as people are apt to do—very short markets. It is true that about 500,000 of us did lay our cars up last autumn.

But the petrol situation was easier, and the government was not so big-headed, but they are not so stingy as they were—if you can put up your decent case for extra supply.

The Case For Reprisals

From The Nineteenth Century

That Londoners should demand reprisals for the unprovoked and unprovoked attack on the British ship, the Devon, is a demand that they demand retribution, a right and honest.

There is a demand for retribution, a right and honest. There is a demand for retribution, a right and honest. There is a demand for retribution, a right and honest.

There is a demand for retribution, a right and honest. There is a demand for retribution, a right and honest. There is a demand for retribution, a right and honest.

Cars On British Roads

By P. O'D. in Toronto Saturday Night

Last autumn when Sir John Simon, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, brought in his new money-saving tax on motor cars, I remember myself to prophesy—always a risky thing to do. I said that the new tax, combined with the severe restrictions on petrol, would force half the motorists in the country to lay their cars up, thus causing a deep slump in the revenue expected from that source.

The government would obviously save a lot of petrol. But just as obviously, they would lose a lot of money—or so I thought.

I was wrong. And so were all the other motorists who view with alarm—as people are apt to do—very short markets. It is true that about 500,000 of us did lay our cars up last autumn.

But the petrol situation was easier, and the government was not so big-headed, but they are not so stingy as they were—if you can put up your decent case for extra supply.

McLaughlin Horse's Lead Canada

TWO good horses, Hood and Warrington, running in higher priced events played a major part in making R. McLaughlin of Ohio a Canada leading breeder of money winning horses in 1940, according to the annual compilation of The Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association which was released last night. Incidentally McLaughlin is a motor magazine, but his horse interest dates back to the days when his family made buggy.

With 21 horses from his breeding farm winning a total of 30 races, McLaughlin's total purses amounted to $68,100. R. J. Speers of Winnipeg dropped to second place in total winnings with $55,570 although he had 45 winning horses that placed first in 116 races.

Speers retained his position however as the leading breeder for Canada over the 10 year period from 1930 with $322,180 won in 380 races. McLaughlin's winnings for the same period were $288,565. This is the first time in 10 years that the McLaughlin colors have led Canada in winnings.

Burning Shish, another son of the great Cobble, was the chief winner for Speers in 1940, doing much of his running on U.S. tracks.

One of the highlights of the past season was the showing made by Harry Giddings of Oakville, Ontario. In 1939 he was ninth among Canadian breeders with seven starters winning 15 races for a total of $12,353. This year Giddings had eight winning horses that topped 22 races and earned a total of $25,143 that put him in sixth place among Canadian breeders.

The following table lists the first 34 breeders of thoroughbreds in Canada for 1940. The figures however do not indicate the wins or earnings in any individual's colic alone in many cases the horses are now racing under other owners.

Roundup Before "30"

PETTY OFFICER WRITING TOMMY GRAHAM of the Royal Canadian Navy is back in Edmonton on Christmas Eve. Tommy is now stationed at Ottawa and, having always been a football enthusiast, took more than a passing interest in the Ottawa Rough Riders this fall. He figures one of the chief reasons the Riders showed an east-west trail with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers was that injuries reduced Ottawa power to such an extent that another western victory seemed too certain.

Incidentally Tommy is doing his bit and then some in Canada's war effort. In addition to giving full time to his naval post, he is using much of his off-duty hours in getting out a bright light paper, the Army and Navy Times, that helps to keep the widely scattered units of Canada's active service forces in touch with each other.

Judging from dozens of letters that have come to me from fellows in the Army, Navy and Air Force, the sort of service paper gives much of a big need. All the boys are anxious to hear what goes on in their units and branches of the service are doing and keep in touch with things back home. More friends to you Tommy!

The many friends here at Carl Loblick will learn with deep regret that he is very seriously ill at Trail where he has been working and pitching baseball for several years. He has been fighting a long trouble for some months. Carl's older brother, Mr. Herman, is now with the R.C.A.F. on active service.

TORRID HOCKEY LEAGUE BATTLE IN CAPE BRETON

HALIFAX, Dec. 10.—(CP)—There's barely the whiff of a battle stirring separating the three teams in Cape Breton's hockey league as they are evenly matched in the ultimate championship for the east's club championship bid for the Allan cup since 1933.

Only two points separate the three clubs in the league. Sydney Millionaires, despite a 4-0 setback at the hands of North Sydney Vics Tuesday night, are perched on top with 10 points. Cape Breton's Oilers have 18 points, while North Sydney is riding along just two points behind.

On the point-manufacturing front, it's all winners Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowalski. These boys, sparkplugs of last year's Kirkland Lake Blues Devils, have acquired 22 points apiece, more than the Williams of North Sydney.

Williams, particularly effective against the Millionaires, a team that cost him a spot in the playoffs last season, has been the chief power behind the surge of the Vics.

Turner Valley Jinx Beats Edmonton Club Four Straight

CALGARY, Dec. 10.—(CP)—Jinx that Turner Valley has had over Edmonton in the Alberta Senior Hockey League since the start of the 1940-41 schedule was maintained at the Arena Wednesday night when Oilers outscored Flyers 7-5 for the fourth straight triumph of the season over the northerners.

The victory placed Oilers in a tie for second place with Maple Leafs, who took a 3-2 overtime decision over the peacemaking Stampede at Lethbridge, while Flyers are sole occupants of the cellar position.

Doug Cairns (2), Ross McIntyre (2), Meyer Fleck and Johnny Urzaki were the Turner Valley marksmen, while Eddie O'Keefe (2), Vanecko, Brown and Newcome scored for Edmonton.

Oilers secured a 2-1 lead in the first period, but a 4-3 margin at the end of the second, and outscored their opponents 3 to 2 in the third. It was a clean game, only four penalties being handed out, three to Oilers and one to Flyers.

Attendance falls. Less than 1,200 fans witnessed the contest. Flyers did not look nearly so good as when they held the lead in the first period, but they were the chief power behind the surge of the Vics.

New York State Collects $5,998,000 In First Year Of Mutual Betting

Death Knell Sounded For Track Bookies' Rich Racket

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A lot more money went to the horses this year than last in the United States, but the most striking development in racing for 1940 was the discovery of what a "soft touch" the bookmakers had in New York State for years before the mutuels arrived.

The annual Associated Press survey of the financial side of the turf disclosed Wednesday that $408,328,711 was bet in 10 states with 1,710 racing days this year, compared to $291,794,943 in 10 states with 1,790 days for '39.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Tommy Harmon is being managed by Everett Crosby, Bing's brother. Jimmy Wilson is in town Christmas shopping for some of those Yanks and Dodgers supposed to be on the market. Eddie Ziv is 3-8 over Lew Jenkins tomorrow night.

Today's great star: Arthur E. Palmen, N.Y. Herald-Tribune. "Every one seems to think Bob Feller had a great year."

Fact that there's no getting around the fact that after pitching that no-hitter on opening day, he showed very little improvement."

Sports cocktail: Young Horace Stoneham made a lot of friends for himself and the Giants when he said Carl Hubbell and Mel Ott are Polo Grounds fixtures just as much as the stands. The Joe Louis heir is expected next month.

Chatter chatter: A masculine and personal hair dresser is standard equipment for Soxia Harmon when he goes on her skating tours. — Lew Jenkins. The brother came up from Texas to see the Ziv's fight and the big town traffic has him down. He said: "Lew, what's that to do in New York 'cept dodging cars?"

HUNTER'S MOON FOR SANTA ANITA

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—(AP)—From a real war to the turf war of the United States is the story of Hunter's Moon. A four-year-old mare, she was sold for $100,000 by the Santa Anita.

Four weeks ago Hunter's Moon was bedded down outside Los Angeles, New York at Santa Anita park, getting ready to resume racing.

She was named for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

Hunter's Moon is a good record in distance races. He was the 10th running of the Cesareo with stakes and in his latest 100-mile race, he won against 120 pounds for the big American race.

American League Pitching Honors Won By Bob Feller

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Pitching honors for the American League's 1940 season belong to Young Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians.

Feller was an up from the start. On opening day at Chicago, he blanked Chicago White Sox with a hit, winning that game 1-0, for the first opening day no-hitter in baseball history.

Brilliant of New York Yankees ranked first, technically, on the day in career club with only 131 a game, but pitched in only 13 games. Feller had a 242 work for 43 games, 37 of which he won, and therefore was recognized as the season's leader. Feller lost 11 games.

He won 21 and lost five. For the third straight year Feller and Newman were the toughest leaders. Feller was well in front with 261 "whiffs" Newman fanned 164. Feller appeared in more games than any other pitcher in the league, 43, and he also pitched the most innings, 320.

Feller lost his crown as the league's top "big" man. Ken Chase of Washington gained the most points in the season, 11, in 13 games. Cleveland took 11th place with a 68-65 record.

Chase's pitching was effective. He was 21 and lost five. For the third straight year Feller and Newman were the toughest leaders. Feller was well in front with 261 "whiffs" Newman fanned 164. ## School Board Puts Teeth Into Directions Dealing With Salutation Of Flag

Edmonton public school board puts teeth into its directions to the Superintendent of Schools concerning the saluting of the flag by school pupils at a regular meeting Wednesday in a resolution directing the practice be carried out as stipulated.

Previously the board has merely expressed the practice of a regularly conducted ceremony of saluting the flag in the city schools.

In order to clarify the stand of the board with all parties concerned in the flag-saluting ceremony, an amendment to the original resolution of the board passed on September 24 was unanimously approved at the Wednesday meeting.

The amendment, which was introduced by Trustee S. H. House, reads: "The board of education of the City of Edmonton, in order to clarify the stand of the board with all parties concerned in the flag-saluting ceremony, an amendment to the original resolution of the board passed on September 24 was unanimously approved at the Wednesday meeting."

Smuggled Pictures Reveal How Nazis Bombed Kristiansund In Effort To Kill King Haakon

Two smuggled photographs of the bomb destruction of Kristiansund, a city of 17,000 population on the northwest coast of Norway, were brought to Los Angeles by Odd Jansen, seaman aboard a freighter. "My brother-in-law, whose name I cannot reveal for obvious reasons, took the photographs, and smuggled them past the censor," Jansen explained. "He did it by sleight-of-hand. After the censor inspected the contents of his letter to me, sent to Boston three weeks ago, my brother-in-law was given the envelope back for sealing and stamping. It was then that he subtly placed the pictures in the envelope." The first letter from his brother-in-law contained a friendly note and the two photographs, Jansen explained. He said he was puzzled about the pictures until several days later when a second letter arrived. In this was another note and a second sheet of paper, on which the brother-in-law explained that he tried the sleight-of-hand method to smuggle the pictures in, and that he was using it again to smuggle the explanation. The photograph shows, left, the entire city aflame, and right, the ruins 18 hours after the three-day bombing. Jansen said Kristiansund was made a warship target because the invading Nazis believed King Haakon was hiding somewhere in the city, although he had fled several days before.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

A dowager's hump, perches fearfully at the nape of your neck and behind your back. It does you the ill turn of adding years to your looks. Well, you do not have to put up with it. That hump can literally be ironed away, leaving in its place a nice, smooth, young line.

The treatment is exercise, but of a very special kind. Any exercise which inclines the head and neck forward should be avoided for this helps the hump to grow. The best exercises are those which work the muscles at the nape of the neck and between the shoulders with the head held erect. Here is an excellent set.

1. Hold a towel back of the head, pulling it taut by the ends. Push against the towel with the back of the head as you stretch up with the neck. Repeat six times and rest.

2. Stand erect in good posture and turn the head slowly to touch the point of the chin to the shoulder tip. Then, very deliberately lower the head backward—don't let it drift back—and circle slowly around to touch the point of the chin to the other shoulder tip. Then, thrust muscles through-out the exercise. Afterwards, relax gradually.

3. Stand erect with shoulders relaxed, arms hanging heavily from the shoulders and down at the sides. Begin with the muscles around the neckline at the nape of the neck and contract them, slowly bringing more of the back muscles into the action until the shoulders are hunched up around the ears. Then draw the shoulder blades together, using the muscles between the shoulder blades rather than pushing the shoulder line back. With the shoulder blades held tightly together, slowly draw them down, concentrating the muscular action along the upper part of the spinal column and scapula. Then gradually let all the tension go out of the shoulder girdle. In this exercise, it is very important to counteract any tendency to let the head go forward and to keep the arms and shoulder tips out of the movement.

4. Standing, fold the arms behind the back and just below the shoulder blades. Try to shorten the distance between the head and the folded arms by lowering the head backward and forcibly contracting the back muscles. Always relax the muscles very gradually after performing an exercise.

Those four exercises will not out a dowager's hump, provided you also cultivate the habit of holding your head squarely on your shoulders, neck stretched flat, chin held level, so that a perfect right angle is formed at the junction of chin and throat.
